Class Welcome

Friends, Parents, and Guests.

Today we, the Class of 1939 of Pinkerton Academy, greet you. We are honored by the interest you show in your attendance here.

You — our parents, our friends, and teachers — have made such a ceremony as this, our graduation, possible.

In appreciation of this help and encouragement, we present to you these Class Day exercises — with the hope that they will represent what you have so helped us to accomplish during our four years at Pinkerton.

The March of Time

Calling Mr. and Mrs. America!! Calling Mr. and Mrs. America!!

Sept. 18, 1935—Pinkerton Academy heralded the arrival of a rather abashed little stranger. The new arrival has been christened "39" and at present is well under way to becoming welter-weight champions of historic Pinkerton Academy. The late addition has been placed under the parentage of Frank O'Neil, Virginia Bloomfield, Chester Gordon, and Theresa Bernier.

The current arrival entered upon the scene garbed in a banner of blue and gold, and uttered as its first public statement to the press, the following:

(Quote) "Ever upward, onward go,
To the fight and finish slow,
We're the ones upright and true,
For our banner gold and blue".

39 — 39 — 39!

Sept. 30, 1935—The new infant of the Pinkerton Aristocrats was accorded a hearty reception in the Academy Chapel. This marked the first social debut of "39" and general acquaintances were made via the receiving line. The academy feels its social obligations very strongly these days.

April 15, 1936—Pinkerton's latest addition made its first dramatic appearance to the assembly in the form of a comedy presentation entitled, "The Man from Brandon", with an all star cast. Critics were warm in their praise of this light comedy.

Time Marches On!

Sept. 25, 1936—"39", now recognized as P. A.'s yearling, has commenced another year with only two minor changes in officials. Theresa Bernier and Edward Dasky, succeeded as Vice-President and Treasurer, respectively.

October 30, 1936—This date marked a night of horrors! Old Lady Witch rode her broom-stick high over the Pinkerton Spire. The yearlings, were host to a happy throng of students who were moved to fancy foot work by Ed Harvey's Musical Notes.

February 19, 1937—Flashing to you the highlight in the Sophomore World of sports!! The yearlings were awarded the Basketball trophy for Inter-class competitive games.

Time Marches On!

Sept. 27, 1937—The officers of "39" remain status quo.

Feb. 11, 1938—The Social Event of the Season! The Junior Prom in all its festive attire was influenced by the hearts and flowers atmosphere of St. Valentines. Ed Harvey presided, per usual, with his musical baton.

March 26, 1938—The future dramatic stars or "39" held the premier of "Happy Days" at the Adams Memorial, where the townspeople accorded the cast a huge ovation. The play enjoyed a one night stand before Broadway turned it down.

May 16, 1938—A resounding splash was heard in the vicinity of Angle Pond, as the class "ensemble" plunged into the cooling depths. The class was revived to renewed vigor by hot dogs and soda pop and general dancing followed as the central attraction. Angle Pond is now recognized as one of the gayer resorts of New England.

Time Marches On!

Sept. 25, 1938—Special Bulletin! Landslide elections once more swept across the P. A. Campus with an overwhelming majority for the officers of the past year.

Oct. 17, 1938—Crop failure this year resulted in a cornless roast for the "39,ers". Island Pond was the scene of this hilarious gathering and the spirits of the participants were not in the least dampened by the raindrops. An impromptu amateur hour provided entertainment for the remainder of the evening.

Dec. 20, 1938—Yuletide greetings were offered by the faculty in the form of a gala Christmas Dance, the proceeds of which were generously donated to the senior treasury.

January 30, 1939—Again the "39ers" plunged into Thespian endeavors under Director Wheelock's superb direction. This time, "Little Jimmie Jones", was the object of the Academy award, with a talented cast of Bernhardtts and Barrymores, in the offing. The soaring gate receipts financially assisted the status of the class assets.

April 5, 1939—Late Bulletin! Frank O'Neil, the late president of "39", left for parts unknown. Rumors have it that the popular vagabond is carving a niche for himself in Texas. Re-elections were held by virtue of office, Vice-president Bernier succeeded as President. Charles Perkins was elected to fill the Vice-president vacancy.

May 19, 1939—Headlines! Grover Whalen provides fascinating adventure in the New York World's Fair spectacle, on the World of Tomorrow, to the Pinkerton seniors (and 80,000,000 other spectators) who are spending their time and money on a jaunt to New York City and the fair grounds. The seniors are checking their baggage at the Hotel Bristol and may be contacted at that address by those "back home" ——— A customary excursion tour of the Great White Way will be made and night life, in the manner of Broadway, will be included. The seniors booked passage on the "S. S. New York" at Boston, and arrived in New York the following morning. No casualties have been thus far reported.

June, 1939—Pinkerton was the scene of juvenile revelry as the "39ers" reverted to their childhood days both in costume and actions at the hilarious Kid Party. Infantilism was the order of the night!

For further details, consult your Pinkerton Year Book.

Time Marches On!!!

Class Athletics

We, the Class of 1939, wish to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Bell, Coach Clark, and to all others who have helped to make our attempts a lasting success in the field of athletics.

Our Freshman Year, we boys were defeated by a powerful Sophomore Eleven in football, but in our Sophomore year we traditionally defeated the Freshmen in a triumphant manner.

Junior Year saw us not quite so successful but with dogged persistence we succeeded in capturing the Indoor Inter-class Baseball Championship. This started a steady upward trend in our boys' progress in athletics.

In the fall of our Senior Year we won fame and glory in the Inter-class Football Meet. It took "39"ers to show how football should be played. Consequently the Seniors on the Varsity Football Team were Captain "Dick" Durkee, Charles Perkins, Glenn Wright, "Larry" Langelier, and Manager George Hall.

Our "ever onward, upward go" Seniors brought the season's basketball to a close by winning the trophy from the Juniors. That was a game long to be remembered! Many breaths were held while final shots were being played.

For their excellent services as player and manager respectively, Edward Dasky and Nelson Tewksbury received their Varsity Basketball letters.

The Baseball Varsity Senior members were Laurice Langelier and Laurance Morse—two boys who are to be congratulated for their loyal and able services during the season.

Sincere thanks and appreciation are gratefully expressed by the girls of "39" to Mr. Bell, Mr. Gonye, Miss Aldrich, and Miss Page—for the time, thought and help they were always ready to give us.

The girls' career started in their Sophomore Year—when they won the basketball trophy. The mantel in Room Eight took on a new appearance with this symbol of success gleaming on its surface.

The next feminine highlight in sports occurred in our Senior year. Field Hockey was the object of our affections—so much so that after three tied championship games, we decided to share the trophy with the Sophomores—hence our Senior mantel was adorned the latter half of the year with the golden trophy.

The girls certainly received their share of letters and numerals. The following received their Pinkerton letter: Ruth Bagley, Virginia Smith, Freda Gardner, Theresa Bernier, Louise Pieroni, Grace Hook, and Virginia Woodward. Numerals were awarded to Eleanor Stanton, Jacqueline O'Brien, and Barbara Torrey.

It is with regret that we leave the sports we love behind, and realizing the many athletic opportunities we have had while at Pinkerton we wish to leave one word to those who will remain a little longer: realize and appreciate these opportunities—make the best of them and enjoy them—and your memories will always bring you pleasure.

Senior Class Gifts

Ruth Bagley:

Keep this copy of the "Declaration of Independence." It might be of use in case you change your mind.

Leon Bellavance:

Knowing your interest in cookery, Leon, we present you with this cook book. May our expectations be gratified!

Theresa Bernier:

Tessie, we thought this glass egg might be for you. It came from the Derry Egg Auction.

Barbara Berry:

Emergencies may occur before you start your nursing career. Be prepared with this first aid kit.

Chester Bickford:

May this watch get you there on time, Chet. Remember the basketball trip you missed?

Beatrice Blanchard:

Yodeling is an art, Bea. More of us want to hear you, so try it through this megaphone.

Theresa Blanchard:

We've heard you claim that you didn't get around enough. We have our doubts, but take this roadster and get started.

Virginia Bloomfield:

We wouldn't want you to lose your superb control of adjectives, Virginia, so we're giving you this dictionary in order that you may continue to improve this ability.

Celia Borowski:

Celia, we hear that you wish to become a dress maker. Here's a needle and a spool of thread to start you on your way. Best of luck!

John Boyce:

Knowing you like jitter-bugging, Boycie, we're giving you these jitter-bug mittens so that you will be in the latest style in the profession.

Stanley Brudsisz:

This pair of dark glasses is for you, Stan. Since you are so shy and reserved, you may want to retire behind them.

Howard Bunker:

Here, Howard, is an automobile—so that you may travel faster with little exertion.

Edith Burnham:

Before long, Edith, you will be starting on your career as a dietitian. Here's a book entitled "The Way to Prepare Perfectly Balanced Meals." May you refer to it often.

Doris Buzzell:

This auctioneer's mallet should give you a good start, Doris, on your career as an auctioneer.

Clyde Colby:

Here's a book on penmanship, Clyde. We're sure that, if you study it long enough it will aid you in proving that you really don't write in Chinese.

Leonard Daniels:

Here are some wooden nickels, Len, so that you will not have to borrow them for your phone calls.

Edward Dasky:

Eddie, because we have so much confidence in you as a treasurer, we are giving you this bank.

Marjorie Davis:

Here's the latest song sheet, Marge, we hope it will help you on your career as a blues singer. We'll be listening for you.

Clyde Densmore:

Here's a book entitled "For the Successful Farmer". It must be for you Clyde, for we know you will be one.

Phyllis Dicey:

Phyllis, no doubt you are able to fight your own battles, but someday you may meet your equal. Here's a man; do not let the size of him fool you.

Richard Durkee:

As you gaze upon this small football, Dick, may it bring back memories of your football career at good old P. A.

Arline Duvarney:

We all know of your proficiency as a dancer, so this book of newest dances must be for you, Arline.

Richard Emery:

Richard, memorize these short poems, then perhaps when you find the "one and only" you will know what to say.

Robert Frye:

This "album" we are giving to you is for your snap shots. Perhaps when you are old and grey, they will bring back happy memories of your tender age.

Freda Gardner:

Knowing your desire to look dignified, Freda, we're presenting you with this monocle. With it—and a correct expression, you may be able to accomplish your ends.

Russell Goodchild:

We sincerely believe that this small plane will satisfy you until you are able to buy one of your own.

Chester Gordon:

Here, Chet, is a little sail boat. We hope it pleases you to be captain of your own craft.

George Hall:

Here's a bottle of grape juice, George. We know it will please you to give it its name.

Marilyn Hamilton:

Because you have a hard time understanding jokes, Marilyn, we are giving you this joke book. With this and your powers of concentration you stand a good chance of learning how to "see through".

Grace Hook:

Because of your excellent amateur standing as an athlete we present you with an entry blank into the next World Olympic Games contest.

Demetra Kachavos:

This is a first aid kit, Demmy. We hope that it will be of use to you when you take up your future profession of nursing.

Gladys Kelley:

So that you may satisfy your desire to transport hordes of people, Gladys, we're giving you this bus. Now you won't have to refuse anyone a ride.

Arline Ladd:

Knowing your wish to become domesticated, Laddy, we're sure that this percolator will fittingly start you on your way.

Laurice Langelier:

Here's a bottle of wave set, Langy. Now you can be sure that your curls will stay in order.

Jeannette Levesque:

Secretarial work seems to be your specialty, Jeanette, so we're giving you this stenographer's note book, personally autographed by your teacher in this field—Miss Brackett.

Albert Marcotte:

Coaching baseball is an art, Albert. This book of instructions should be of use to you when you're on a big league bench.

Warren Martell:

We've searched a long while for your gift, Warren. It's a quarantine sign just to keep your treasured mumps fresh in your memory.

Patricia Martin:

We feel sure this stenographer's note book will come in handy in your future work as "private secretary" to some lucky man.

Francis McKay:

So that you won't have to continue borrowing horses, Fran, we're giving you this beautiful mount, with which to start your stables.

Barbara McMaster:

We hear that you have been wanting an "A" in advanced algebra. Here it is. Better cherish it, Barbara.

Lucille Mercure:

This bank book will furnish you with a good excuse to visit the bank, Lucille. We understand you have a personal interest there.

Janet Messier:

In order that you may not forget your duties as basketball manager, Janet, here's a miniature manager's letter for you.

Laurance Morse:

We hear you are an excellent chauffeur "Morsie". So that you will look more professional, we're going to give you this chauffeur's cap. Home James!

Gladys Nugent:

Here are two little silver bells, Gladys. We're giving them to you because we know that you will have a specific use for them, ere long.

Jacqueline O'Brien:

To help your operatic aspirations, we're giving you this contract with the Metropolitan Opera Company to co-star with Nelson Eddy in "La Boheme".

Lillian Parks:

The cold seems to be a particular enemy of yours, Parksie, so we're giving you these red flannels, in case you ever have trouble finding a radiator.

Rae Parmenter:

This sign may help to distinguish you, Rae, from the other students next year.

Charles Perkins:

You're famous for your ties, Perk. Here's another one to add to your collection. Long may you reign as king of tie fashions.

Louise Pieroni:

Gaining weight seems to be a hard task for you, Louise. Perhaps these vitamin tablets will help you along.

Virginia Porter:

We are sure this book entitled "Methods of Kindergarten Teaching" will aid you in your future profession, Virginia. Study it well.

Ray Richards:

A camera for you, Ray. Let the public see your news. That will be much easier than writing it.

Hazel Robie:

Here's a two-year scholarship for N. H. U. It must be for you, Hazel. We hear you are rather interested in that particular University.

Bernard Rubin:

Knowing the desire you have to pass the bar, Rube, we're giving you this shingle with your name and future profession on it as a further incentive for you to reach your goal.

Eleanor Shackford:

It seems as though the traditional shortening should be given to one of our lengthy members, so you've been chosen, Eleanor.

Robert Shepard:

So that you will not fall out of the habit of keeping floors clean, Robert, we're giving you this broom. We hope it will give you cause to continue your good work.

Ethelwyn Simpson:

Here's a copy of "I Must See Annie Tonight." We hear that the name Annie means more to you Simpson, than it does to us.

Ida Smart:

With the aid of these goggles Ida, you may now keep your eyes open and see the sights when you go riding on that motorcycle.

Virginia Smith:

"How to Lose Friends and Alienate People". This simply must be for you "Gin". In case your popularity ceases to be novel to you, you'll know how to change the situation.

Eleanor Stanton:

Knowing the scarcity of D's in your scholastic record here at Pinkerton, Eleanor, we had this one made especially for you, just so you'll know what one looks like.

Osborne Stone:

A radio tube—I guess this goes to you Stonie. It may help you to create a radio that even the Philco people will accept.

Dorothy Sullivan:

The Class of "39" is extremely grateful for your excellent services as Secretary during the past years, so we're presenting you with this formal recommendation, signed by all of us—as to your able abilities.

Nelson Tewksbury:

Drum sticks are rather hard to get "Tewk" so you'd better be grateful to the poor chicken who sacrificed these.

Barbara Torrey:

The traditional megaphone goes to you, Barbara. Maybe if you shout real loudly we will be able to know when you're in our midst.

Virginia Woodward:

We know that you consider a window stick one of the most valuable pieces of apparatus within the school building, "Woodie", so it seems most fitting that we give this one to you. Now you may carry on your ventilation aspirations.

Glenn Wright:

In case you are never able to hire a platform from which to deliver your political speeches, Glenn, we're giving you this soap box. It may come in handy.

Class Statistics

Ever upward onward go
To the fight and finish slow.
We're the ones upright and true
For our banner gold and blue.
Through four years of work and play
This cheer has brought us on our way.

And although new opportunities unfold,
 We will still be true to our blue and gold.
 The Senior Class is much alive,
 With fun-loving students numbering sixty-five.
 Statistics show we are 338 ft. seven inches tall,
 8,627 pounds belong to us all.
 With 1,141 years to show,
 We still have quite a way to go.
 Our Senior Class marvelously cliques,
 We have 40 Protestants and 17 Catholics.
 And remarkably true we have two Hebrews.
 The eyes are all of varied hues—
 12 brown, 12 hazel, and 27 blue.
 True, our Senior Class will never lack
 With 2 grey, 10 green, and 2 black.
 45 brunettes lead the class,
 With many a blonde and red-headed lass.
 Our favorite teacher is Miss Billings by name,
 Again this year she earns this fame.
 Sociology, the Seniors all uphold
 With its constructive and worthwhile goal.
 Now comes the dream of both girl and boy,
 Our sweet and charming Myrna Loy,
 And along with her we find Errol Flynn
 With his big blue eyes and marvelous grin.
 Without ice cream we are at a great loss
 With all its nuts and its chocolate sauce.
 "Our Lives Have Just Begun"
 Is the Seniors' favorite book.
 Wherever you see a Senior,
 You'll find it in his favorite nook.
 Virginia Smith as most popular we choose,
 With her in our class we never can lose.
 Charles Perkins is a most popular lad
 And a better Vice-President could never be had.
 You can easily see by one look at our Class,
 That Marilyn Hamilton is our best dressed lass.
 Our best dressed boy is Robert Frye.
 Just take a look as he goes by.
 The best girl dancer was hard to select
 But Arline Duvarney had that certain effect.
 And Chester Gordon cannot be beat,
 For Chet certainly has got rhythm in his feet.
 Deep Purple, our favorite song;
 We sing and whistle all day long.

Bloomfield and Richards, our wittiest two,
 Seldom allow us to be blue.
 Patricia Martin is our quietest maid,
 We hope her title will never fade.
 Stanley Brudzisz is our quietest chap,
 For this honor Stan takes the rap.
 Jacqueline O'Brien is our prettiest girl,
 Hazel grey eyes and golden curls.
 Our best looking fellow is Langelier,
 We hope his personality is not veneer.
 Our youngest boy is quite the lad,
 In spite of this Nelson Tewksbury's not bad!
 Our youngest girl is exceptionally bright.
 Eleanor Stanton? Yes, you have guessed right.
 Our oldest girl is Ida Smart,
 A very small girl with a very big heart.
 Richard Durkee is our oldest male.
 In football games Dick never fails.
 The tallest boy is Johnny Boyce,
 In this matter he had no choice.
 Edith Burnham from upon the hill
 Has grown and grown and grown until—
 Our shortest boy is a red-headed chap,
 It is Robert Shepard who is noted for that.
 Virginia Bloomfield is our shortest doll,
 Heaven knows Gin can't grow tall!
 Now our statistics have all been told
 With all due respect to the Blue and the Gold.
 And as we leave these thoughts with you,
 Dear Pinkerton, we bid adieu!

Class Prophecy

Scene—A cavern. In the middle a boiling cauldron.
 Enter the three witches.

1st witch: Thrice the brinded cat hath mew'd.
2nd: Thrice, and once the hedge-pig whined.
3rd: Harpier cries, "'Tis time, 'tis time."
1st: Round about the cauldron go;
 In the poison'd entrails throw,
 Sevelter'd venom sleeping got,
 Boil thou first; the charmed pot.
All: Double, double, toil and trouble;
 Fire burn, and cauldron bubble.

- 1st: Ah, the broth is clearing,
Soon we will be able to prophesy.
- 2nd: Strange things are forming.
- 3rd: What dost thou see, oh evil one?
- 2nd: Behold, Weird Sisters, I see a great white building. A hospital, I believe. Listen, the roll call is being given of graduating nurses: Ruth Bagley, Barbara Berry, Demetra Kachavos, Lillian Parks, Rae Parmenter, Janet Messier and Dorothy Sullivan. This noble profession, has attracted many members of "39".
- 3rd: The scene changes, oh vomits of hell—I behold mountains, woods, and a lake. On its shore is a camp. Its sign says: "Physical Education Camp,"—directed by Francis Whitford McKay, Richard Durkee, and Phyllis Dicey. Great fame surrounds those three who started their career at Pinkerton. I wonder how Dicey happened to team up with them?
- 2nd: Well, well. A picture of great commotion and hurrying appears before me. This is apparently the day that the Senior Class of "49" is having its pictures taken by those eminent photographers, George Hall and Robert Frye. Candid shots were always the specialties of those two.
- 1st: Ah! I see a huge publishing house. The person in charge of book reviewing seems to be blonde and sedate looking. It must be "Pat" Martin. And whose book do you think she is working on? It's Howard Bunker's latest collection of poems—"Memories of School Days". What memories they must be! It should be a best seller for months.
- 2nd: I see the interior of a modern progressive school, at the head of which is Barbara McMaster. Many familiar faces appear on her staff. There is Edith Burnham, tall as ever, who guides little children's future in the field of handicraft after they have been given their preliminary training by Virginia Porter. And—yes—there's Richard Emery directing a class in arithmetic. No counting on fingers allowed, Richard.
- 3rd: The vision now becomes a little clearer. I see two reporters triumphantly entering the editor's office, having been successful with their first big scoop. They are Eleanor Shackford and Ray Richards. As usual, Ray has an assistant, and I wonder if his penmanship has improved.
- 1st: Behold, ye toothless varmints! There now appears an impressive courtroom scene. The young and prominent lawyer, Bernard Rubin, is defending the one Glenn Edward Wright, who is being prosecuted by the city for inciting a political riot. The highlights of politics still intrigue Glenn.
- 3rd: I hear cheers and applause for Miss Arline McLure, the former Arline Ladd, for her latest picture, "The Glamour Girl"—with Chester Gordon as her leading man. The picture was produced under the direction of Virginia Bloomfield—and the art direction of Jacqueline O'Brien. Can you imagine Laddy taking orders from Bloomfield, or O'Brien and Bloomfield working harmoniously together?

1st: The scene changes. Oh cool the baboon's blood! I behold the exciting and dangerous life of the circus. Two faces seem familiar; bravely facing a cage full of ferocious lions is Freda Gardner—the circus' famous woman lion tamer. I guess Freda's met her match at last.

As I look skyward with the rest of the crowd I see the popular millionaire playboy, Russell Goodchild, thrilling the spectators by doing stunts with his airplane. As an added attraction his companion, Virginia Smith, gives an exhibition of her excellent parachute jumping. Oh! for the life of adventure! It certainly must be satisfying to Smitty's restless nature.

1st: A drum, a drum! An orchestra comes—strains of music reach my ears. There is Eleanor Stanton's Elite Hotel—with its orchestra featuring Marjorie Davis as soloist and Nelson Tewksbury as drummer. Those drum sticks we gave "Tewk" must have come in handy after all.

3rd: Now, a colorful event is taking place. It looks like a tea—presenting the young debs, Ethelwyn Simpson and Ida Smart, to the social world. Their frocks were designed by the most eminent designer, Celia Borowski. I see where she has carried on the work she began in Home Economics.

2nd: Wait, all vision fades!
The inky waters do not prophesy.
The magic spell has been broken,
Let us chant our song and dance.

All: Double, double, toil and trouble
Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

1st: Behold, an airplane in flight. The ace pilot is Warren Martell. The comfort of the passengers, two of whom are the big business man, Leon Bellavance, and his secretary Theresa Blanchard, is under the care of a pretty hostess, Gladys Kelley.

3rd: I see the image of a baseball game. Coaching from the bench is that immortal of coaches, Albert Marcotte. He signals to his star first baseman, Laurice Langelier. Don't get your signals mixed, Larry!

2nd: Behold you sisters, secret, black and midnight hags—Ah—there is Doris Buzzell's red auctioneer's sign hanging up in the yard. There's an auction going on and some of New England's famous home makers are there. Among them are Beatrice Blanchard, Grace Hook and Gladys Nugent. They make a business of collecting old New England antiques to sell to decorators. Remember, they played prominent parts in the Home Economics Classes at Pinkerton.

1st: I see a huge ocean liner returning from Paris and on board is Miss Marilyn Hamilton, the famous buyer for a New York department store. She is accompanied by her personal maid, Jeanette Levesque, and her social secretary, Lucille Mercure. "What will our gay young things wear this summer?" That still seems to be Marilyn's cry. I wonder if she is still complaining about the care and protection her mother gives her.

3rd: Why, how now, Hecate! A dancing school looms up in the murky waters. At its head are John Boyce and Charles Perkins, those famous jitterbugs of Pinkerton days. One of their most able instructors is Louise Pieroni—the girl who loved to dance while in school, apparently is still going strong. Wonder if she has gained any weight!

2nd: The hell broth bubbles—there's a castle that seems to have been transformed. It now looks like a Physical Education School and yes, it's under the direction of Virginia Woodward. Looks as though the windows were all propped open with sticks or else it's an open air affair anyway. Trust Woodward to extol the open air theory. Woodie has as her dietitian, Barbara Torrey. Watch the calories, Barbara, both for your own sake and Woodward's.

3rd: Another vision appears. It looks like a large engineering concern, and yes, it is managed by Clyde Colby, that master of Diesel Engineering. His assistant technical engineer is Osborne Stone, famous for technicalities while a little boy at Pinkerton. The master draftsman seems to be Laurance Morse, and Theresa Bernier is directing the office force. At the switchboard, guess whom? You're right, it's Arline Duvarney. (Number please!)

1st: Behold, I see a large department store. Among the many busily occupied clerks is a well known member of "39", Hazel Robie. Her sunny smile would sell anything.

Wait! All visions seem to be fading but still there are other prophecies in the murky waters of the cauldron. In the distance—no, right here—is Chester Bickford, crossing the finish line. At last he has gained success as a marathon runner. And speaking of races here's a vision of Robert Shepard as a jockey, riding Ocean Cracker, the great Kentucky turf kicker, owned by the great shoe magnate, Leonard Daniels. The famous Ocean Cracker was trained for the turf by Stanley Brudzisz.

The scene changes to the International Poultry Exposition where Clyde Densmore shares the honors with Grover Whalen, as president of the fair. The theme has been dedicated to that great blue ribbon poultry king, Edward Dasky: "The egg of today is the chicken of tomorrow."

The pot of filth has ceased to prophesy—no longer do these dreams emerge. Avant ye denizens of the blackened night—disperse!

Class Will

We, the Class of 1939, of Pinkerton Academy in the town of Derry, county of Rockingham and state of New Hampshire, being of sound mind and disposing memories, realizing the uncertainty of life, wish to dispose of all our goods, chattels, and any other sundry belongings we may be so fortunate (or unfortunate) as to possess as herein set forth. This document hereby revokes all previous wills and testaments which may have been made heretofore:

- Art.* 1. I, Clyde Colby, bequeath my Chinese penmanship to any Hand-Writing Analyzer to decode.
- Art.* 2. I, Richard Durkee, do hereby will and bequeath my concession of the senior doorway to any amateur sleuth who discovers the attraction.
- Art.* 3. I, Charles Perkins, hereby bequeath my adeptness for running around the oval to Charles Akerman. Never be late for football because of a girl, Charlie — 15 times around is quite a trot.
- Art.* 4. We, the Senior Gym Team, will and bequeath our Chimpanzee tendencies on the rings, to any under-classman who might care to swing it.
- Art.* 5. I, Virginia Woodward, do will and bequeath my personal monopoly on fresh air, to anyone else who might possibly sleep with their windows open.
- Art.* 6. I, Leon Bellavance, begrudgingly bequeath my favorite book to Arthur Scott — it's the Cook Book.
- Art.* 7. I, Marjorie Davis, hereby will my platinum locks to Constance Davis, in the firm belief that gentlemen still prefer blondes.
- Art.* 8. I, Francis McKay, do will and bequeath my double, to any harassed soul who desires to play a dual role.
- Art.* 9. I, Laurice Langelier, do bequeath my fatal charm to George Katsakiores with the hope that he will appreciate being a matinee idol.
- Art.* 10. I, Virginia Smith, do hereby bequeath my surname to the first applicant so that a rare and almost extinct name, may not entirely disappear.
- Art.* 11. I, Virginia Bloomfield, hereby will and bequeath my Latin temperament, and spasmodic display of fire works, to any other rebel at arms.
- Art.* 12. I, Albert Marcotte, hereby will my home-run faculties to James Gagnon, a member of next year's baseball squad.
- Art.* 13. I, Chester Gordon, will and bequeath my gastronomical capacity to Robert Senter, so that his own coupled with mine should enable him to break all former records.

- Art. 14. I, Warren Martell, hereby bequeath my dancing feet to Fannie Smith, with the helpful hint that a few more lessons would not be entirely wasted.
- Art. 15. I, Arline Duvarney, do will and bequeath my dark eyes to Betty Smith with the sole provision that she learn the method of eye-lashing.
- Art. 16. I, Robert Frye, hereby bequeath my sophisticated veneer to Pierce Woodward, in the staunch belief that it never fails to make an impression.
- Art. 17. I, Glen Wright, will and bequeath my mulish disposition and forceful manner to Robert Larmondra, in the event that he is interested in the "Creed of the Conquering Chief."
- Art. 18. I, Rae Parmenter, do bequeath a few of my excess pounds to Esther Robie who needs it as badly as I want to get rid of it.
- Art. 19. I, Edith Burnham, bequeath to Pauline Shepard the privilege of being the tallest girl in Pinkerton. Having my head in the clouds is not a figure of speech.
- Art. 20. I, Marilyn Hamilton, bequeath my knowledge of what the well dressed young things shall wear this summer, to all those who are as clothes conscious as I.
- Art. 21. I, Lillian Parks, hereby will to any young hopeful my sentimental moods with the gentle reminder that romance is not yet a lost art. (She hopes!)
- Art. 22. I, Arline Ladd, hereby will my demureness to Doris Dumont, with the accompanying thought that the meek shall inherit the earth.
- Art. 23. I, Hazel Robie, do bequeath my sunny disposition to the weather man for the good of the whole Mississippi Valley.
- Art. 24. I, Theresa Bernier, hereby will and bequeath my grown-up, sedate ways to Beth Ingalls, in the forlorn hope that dignity still has a place in the under classes.
- Art. 25. I, Dorothy Sullivan, do bequeath my Irish handle to any other dear old son of Erin, preferably Cassidy, Jr. . . . "Shure it's a great day for the Irish!"
- Art. 26. I, Doris Buzzell, do will and bequeath a certain sum of money for the purchase of a muzzle to be worn by any under-classman who is garrulously inclined.
- Art. 27. To Mr. Bell, we give our sincere thanks and lifelong friendship.
- Art. 28. To the faculty, we leave the memory of how startlingly brilliant a class may be.

We do firmly assure this to be the last will and testament of the Class of 1939. Given under our hand and seal this fifteenth day of June in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine.

Presentation of the Spade

Members of the class of '42. On behalf of the class of '41, I take great pleasure in presenting to you this spade. May the motives and ideals for which it stands be of everlasting value and assistance to you in your educational pursuits and may you use it as successfully as did we, the class of '41.

Louis DiPietro '41.

Acceptance of the Spade

Mr. President:

On behalf of the Class of 1942, I accept with a feeling of pride, this spade which symbolizes so much. We will ever keep before us those motives and ideals of which you speak, and with the Class of '41 as an example, we cannot fail.

Philip Pelletier '42

Salutatory

On behalf of the Senior Class of Pinkerton Academy, it is my pleasure to welcome all of you—our friends—to this 124th commencement at Pinkerton Academy.

Certainly it is fitting and proper that you who have constantly been our friends should be present here on this—our particular day that marks our achievement—our graduation day.

Friends are an integral and necessary part of everyone's life. Without friends life would mean little. No one can live apart from everyone else and get very much out of living. No one can develop enough self-sufficiency to satisfy himself and to take the place of companionship, for after all most of life's great achievements are gained through friendship and co-operation with one's fellow men. And whether we realize it or not we gain valuable lessons in social living from our friends. For if we truly admire them and wish to give pleasure and get along with them, we have to learn to compromise, to be tolerant, and to have a respect for their opinions. When we have learned these three fundamentals of social living, our happiness will be greatly increased and our usefulness doubled.

Then too, our friends are needed to share pleasures, to confide in, to give encouragement. At a time when we are perplexed or discouraged, our friends give us the needed impetus to go on.

You have given us encouragement and help when we needed it. You have always been ready to do your part. You have given us sympathy and shared our pleasures with us. And it is for this that I wish to thank you and try to express to some extent the appreciation of my class. And we do truly hope that we may continue to have your encouragement and interest as we make our way forward.

Thus it is only natural and right that you should be here with us on our day of all days, and may I again heartily welcome every one of you to these graduation exercises of the Class of 1939 of Pinkerton Academy.

Valedictory

Pinkerton's tower has faced benignantly out over the campus for many years. The hands of its clock have moved slowly but surely on their way. The firm weather vane has alternated its position with the confidence born of surety and perfection. The familiar railings have been covered with clinging green ivy. The tower itself has given the impression of pride—pride at being the guide for so many lives, and also of being a familiar landmark in the town it has so long served. Not only has the tower kept watch over the grounds and a large part of the surrounding territory but it has also served as a constant reminder that one has certain responsibilities to school, to friends, and to parents. The tower has been the symbol of our school life and to it we have pointed with pride, and with a flooding sense of the joys we have experienced and those which are yet to come.

Today we are leaving Pinkerton and its tower, the tower which will continue to influence our lives and those of many others who come after us. During its many years of service the tower has majestically witnessed grief and happiness, failure and success, pride and humility—of our own and of others.

In the future, wherever we may be, we will see this wise structure continuing its fostering, uncomplainingly and sagely. Should we succeed or fail, the tower will send its message to us, congratulating us, chiding us, sympathizing or encouraging us, whatever the occasion may demand.

We would like to express our appreciation to you, Mr. Bell, and to you, Faculty members, for your co-operation and willing help. The training we have received here will be indispensable to us always, and as the years go by, a greater realization of your efforts will come to us.

Without the support and the sacrifices of our parents and the townspeople of Derry, we could not have carried on during the past four years. Our thanks to them also.

Classmates: The parting hour has definitely arrived. The tower clock is relentlessly ticking off the few remaining minutes. In view of this I bid you goodbye—not a final and tearful farewell, but a hopeful “Au revoir”.

Alumni Notes

Several graduates of this Alma Mater have turned to marriage this spring. Here's to their happiness and success!

1926—Miss Villa Thoits was married to Mr. Arthur Perkins of Albany, N. Y., where they now reside.

1931—Miss Hazel Leona Parshley is now married to John T. Cavanaugh of Coventry, R. I., where the newlyweds plan to reside.

1932-1934—Edyth M. Davis, graduate of '34, and Donald Beauchamp of '32, are now married.

The name of Pinkerton will be carried on through the birth of children to the following graduates:

1919—To Mr. and Mrs. Gibson (Beatrice Davis '19), a daughter, in March 1939.

1928—To Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burbank (Ruth Barrington), graduates of '28 and '31 respectively, a son, on April 4, 1939.

1929—To Mr. and Mrs. Albert Uicker, both of '29, a son, in April 1939.

Ex-'30—To Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wittemore (Blanche Converse, ex-'30), a daughter, in March 1939.

1931—To Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gonye (Claire Ricard, ex-'36), a daughter, in March 1939.

Ex-'31—To Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Holmes (Alice Lewis, ex-'31), a son, Frederick Lewis, in March 1939.

1934—To Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holbrook (Virginia Dorman) a daughter, in March 1939.

Ex-'35—To Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cassidy (Hazel Hamilton, ex-'35), a daughter, on April 12, 1939.

Ex-'35—To Mr. and Mrs. Gail Vizzard (Clyde Boles), of Cambridge, a daughter, Diana Elizabeth.

1936—To Mr. and Mrs. George Boles (Frances Grover), a son, in March 1939.

Pinkerton is proud to announce the honors and awards received by the following graduates who have passed through her portals:

The N. H. U. honors include this fine representation from Pinkerton:
